TINTON FALLS, N.J., July 11, 2018 /PRNewswire/ -- Commvault (NASDAQ: CVLT), a global leader in enterprise backup, recovery, archive and the cloud, today announced a powerful line up of keynote presenters and speaking sessions at its third-annual customer conference, Commvault GO® 2018, the only industry event dedicated to backup and recovery for the progressive enterprise. Held in the vibrant city of Nashville, Tenn. on Oct. 9-11, 2018, Commvault GO will be headlined by Bill Nye "The Science Guy" and acclaimed actor, poet, comic and motivator Steve Connell, and feature keynotes from Commvault chairman, president and CEO, N. Robert Hammer; Commvault Chief Operating Officer Al Bunte; and executives from the biggest names in the IT industry, including Cisco, Microsoft, AWS, Google and HPE.

Building on the success of its back-to-back sold-out conferences in 2016 and 2017, Commvault GO 2018 will feature more than 150 breakouts, labs, mini-theaters, industry-specific and customer speaking sessions. Emceed by Jillian Coffin, vice president and group publisher for TechTarget's Storage, Cloud, Data Center and Channel/MSP business units, the event will bring Commvault's vast audience of data experts, customers, partners, and influencers together in a deeply engaging and entertaining environment that inspires new actionable ideas, fosters professional relationships, and sparks new business opportunities.

At Commvault GO 2018, Nye and Connell will share their unique perspectives on the role data plays in the world of science and IT to help attendees picture the possibilities on how data can enable their organizations to adapt to the digital economy, gain a competitive advantage and achieve remarkable results.

Commvault GO Keynote Talent Lineup Packs a Powerful Punch

Perhaps best known as Bill Nye the Science Guy, Nye is also an engineer, comedian, author, and inventor who has garnered 18 Emmy awards. Dedicated to fostering a scientifically literate society and to helping people everywhere understand and appreciate the science that makes our world work, he has authored and spoken on topics of global importance including climate change, evolution, population, space exploration, and STEM education. Nye also serves as CEO of the Planetary Society, the world's largest space-interest group. As an inventor, he holds a number of unusual patents, including an improved toe shoe for ballerinas, a device to help people learn to throw a baseball better, and a magnifier made of water.

"How cool is it that Bill Nye, the Science Guy that we have all come to know and love will be on hand to headline Commvault GO 2018 in one of the most exciting and vibrant cities in the world?" said Chris Powell, chief marketing officer, Commvault. "More than ever before, we've reached a moment in time where innovations in how we are able to manage, move, analyze and recover data can inspire business leaders to achieve things they have never even imagined. For data experts, Commvault GO is a must-attend event that will empower them to not only picture all the remarkable new possibilities they can use data to create, but also provide them with the knowledge and skills they need to transform their enterprise to make these possibilities a reality."

Connell is a new breed of presenter: a multi-faceted hybrid talent, fusing poetry, comedy, motivational speaking, acting and storytelling into a transformative and original experience that has been captivating global audiences for several years. A National Poetry Champion, he is a two-time HBO Def Poet, and the former creative director for Norman Lear's "Declare Yourself" campaign.

Coffin has been with TechTarget since 2002 when she started as a publisher. In her current role, she is responsible for editorial, audience development, marketing, product management and sales execution for TechTarget's Storage, Virtualization and Cloud Media business.
