News Facts

- CommVault will distribute products through UXC Connect under a partner agreement to market and sell CommVault® Simpana® software and support services to enterprise customers across Australia.
- UXC Connect, the newly founded infrastructure group formed by the merger of the Integ Group, XSI Data Solutions and UXC Connect (formally Getronics), has named CommVault one of only eight strategic partners.
- With over 650 employees and projected first-year revenues of $235 million, the new UXC Connect forms a commanding presence in the Australian technology landscape and is focused on driving true innovation through offerings which include managed services, cloud and premise unified communications, mobility, secure networking, as well as data centre and storage management.
- CommVault is UXC Connect's only strategic partner dedicated to providing data and information management software solutions. With CommVault's uniquely scalable, single platform Simpana software, the company is well positioned to help drive market momentum and software sales for CommVault among large corporate and government organisations looking to modernize the protection of their data applications and environments.
- As a strategic partner, CommVault will form the backbone of UXC Connect's primary solutions offerings targeted at UXC Connect's install base of large enterprise customers and numerous partners.

Strategic Partnership Drives Simpana Software Market Momentum

- UXC Connect has aligned with CommVault to address customers' escalating data growth needs and rising demand for modern data management solutions that reduce storage costs while increasing operational efficiencies.
- By selecting CommVault as a strategic partner in the area of data and information management, UXC Connect will distribute Simpana software's integrated solutions for content organization, backup modernization, disaster recovery, eDiscovery, compliance and storage resource management.
- In doing so, UXC Connect will facilitate additional business for its reseller partners and enable the company's large enterprise customers to transform their mission-critical data, ensuring it is protected, optimised and accessible across physical, virtual and cloud computing environments.

Supporting Quotes
